HUDSON SEDAN CRASHES INTO LOCAL HOUSE

Broken Radius Rod Blamed
For Damage To J. C. Rader
Home Washington-St.

A broken radius rod was thought to be the cause of an accident Friday at 7.20 p. m. in which the Hudson sedan driven by James Snyder of Pickaway-st. struck the house of J. C. Rader on S. Washington-st., causing the foundation, splintering the weatherboarding, and shattering a window. On the inside of the damaged room the plastering was broken and the floor board torn off and near the ceiling the paper cracked.

M. and Mrs. Rader were at home at the time of the crash and thought that most of the plastering in the house had fallen. Their parlor floor was covered with plate glass, splinters and plaster. The Snyder car was being driven north on Washington-st. and when the driver tried to turn down the alley to his garage, the machine missed the turn and rammed into the house. Snyder was uninjured with the exception of a small cut on one hand.

The G. H. Adkins wrecker was sent for the car which was badly damaged.

Another of a Series of Intimate Life Stories of Circleville Citizens.

Hard work, and plenty of it. That's E. S. Neuding's hobby which years ago developed into an everyday habit. It perhaps can be said to have been the secret for his high esteem in his community where he is known as one of Circleville's influential citizens.

This man of imposing appearance and forceful character, has the satisfaction of looking back on an astounding number of successful undertakings achieved through his management and keen mind.

Of all his accomplishments, he likes to speak with pride of his grocery store on E. Main street, which has borne his name for 40 years. His customers for that period of time have been from all over the city. Many still deal there, whom he first met over the counter 40 years ago, selling them groceries and provisions.

He opened the store April 17, 1890. His experience was gained in service for ten years previous in another store. In 1907 he bought the building where the store was located. Six years later he built the Neuding residence at 341 E. Main street.

Mr. Neuding is a native of Pickaway-co., and was born in Walnut-twp. January 26, 1866. He moved with his parents to Circleville in 1886 and attended the public schools here. It was 11 years after he had started his clerking in the grocery that he married Mary H. Jones of New Holland, in October 1891. They have two daughters, Mrs. Helen N. Atwell of Chillicothe, and Miss Lucile Neuding, a teacher at Franklin street school. Robert J. Atwell of Chillicothe is his only grandchild.

and one duties, is the sort of man who always has a minute to stop and speak to everyone. His piercing eyes and heavy brow seem to fathom the deepest of troubles, and the highest of joys. It may be to this insight that may be attributed his many accomplishments.

MEMBER OF COUNCIL

Among these he has duties to fulfill as a member of the board of directors and vice-president of the Scioto Building and Loan Co., member of the board of directors and vice-president of the Circleville Ice co., member and president of the board of land appraisers of the city of Circleville at last apportionment, and as a member of the City Council since 1928.

He served as a township trustee for four terms, eight years, and as county treasurer for two terms, four years. He was a member of the board of reviews six years, and a member of the board of education for 13 and one-half years. Certainly no more faith of his home town has ever been expressed for one man.

In the period of years he was a member of the school board, he served as president for four years, and clerk for another period of that duration. It was while he was serving in the last capacity that the present Corwin street building and the Circleville high school were erected.

PILLAR OF CHURCH

All of his life, however, has not been devoted to material things. During all of the years of prosperity, he found ample time to give to his church. He is doubtless the most important personage in the United Brethren church today after a brilliant record as executive. In that institution he served as superintendent of the Sunday school for no less than 33 years, and at the present time is treasurer of the church as well as trustee. He has been associated with the work of the county Sunday school for about 35 years as a member of the executive committee and is now president of the county association.

From this local church he has gone for years, to conferences held all over the United States. He served as a delegate to the annual conference a number of times, and was elected delegate to the general conferences seven times. This body meets every four years. These seven conferences have taken him to six different states of the union.

BENEFIT PARTY PROCEEDS TO AID BERGER HOSPITAL

The sincere effort expended by the Business and Professional Women's club in their party at Circleville Athletic club Friday night, was well repaid by the success financially, and socially of the affair.

The proceeds will be used by the organization to add to their fund for furnishing the office at the New Berger Memorial hospital.

The Business and Professional Women's club which has always been willing to help other groups in the city, appreciated the return favors Friday night at the worthy occasion. Private parties and club groups engaged 48 tables.

These were placed around the walls of the gym in two rows, with their cards announcing who had engaged each table. In the center of the large gymnasium floor stood baskets and branches of red bud and dog wood, and potted ferns. This touch of colorful decoration added a real party atmosphere to the function, which was reported to be one of the most successfully managed yet held in the city since the vogue for benefit card parties became popular.

The men too, turned out for the occasion and did not try to conceal the fact they were having a splendid time. Neither were they backward in claiming the prizes.

There was no doubting or redoubling during the evening. This was announced before the game started, by Mrs. Mary Morris who also made the announcements and was in charge of awarding the prizes.

Miss Sally Lynch was chairman of the party. She was assisted by the hospitality committee and others of the business woman's club.

Without the donations, the club took in $94 at the door, and the expenses were nearly $15.

Mrs. Germain Joseph was the lucky winner of the door prize. The first prize for women at bridge was won by Mrs. Laura Pontious; Miss Adeline Weldon, second, and Miss Mary Radcliffe, third. The men's prizes were claimed by Mr. James H. Adams, first; H. O. Grant, second, and John Gallagher, third.

At five hundred, R. N. Beattie won first and John Ward, Jr. second. Two prizes for euchre were won by Ray Reid and Russell Miller.

The Business and Professional Women's club is anxious to thank the public for its support, and interest in the club, and the club's party, given for funds for the hospital.

DENSE FOG OF COAST CAUSE OF COLLISION

Lives of All Sailors Are Saved
By The Crew of The President Harding

HAMBURG, Germany, April 26.—The United States liner President Harding, groping through a dense fog off the German coast, today rammed and sank the British collier Kirkwood, according to reports received here.

The collision occurred near Helgoland, the island used as a German submarine base during the war.

The crew of the Kirkwood was saved by the President Harding soon after the crash.

The President Harding was proceeding to Hamburg from Southampton at the time of the collision. It is not known whether the American liner was seriously damaged.

CONTINUES JOURNEY

Latest word, however, is that the vessel continued on her way to Hamburg after picking up the crew of the Kirkwood.

The accident was the second serious collision in less than three days caused by the heavy blanket of fog which has surrounded the entire coast of Europe.

On Thursday, the North German Lloyd liner Bremen, bound for New York, collided with the English tanker British Grenadier off the English coast. The tanker was badly damaged but neither vessel sank. The Bremen escaped almost unscathed.

The collier Kirkwood was one of 1,674 tons, owned by Francis Rowland and Sons, Ltd., of London.

The President Harding, a 10,000-ton vessel, was built by the United States Shipping Board in Camden, New Jersey, in 1921. It was first christened the Lone Star State, then the President Taft, and finally renamed the President Harding.

The vessel was operated for several years by the United States Shipping Board, and sold, along with the other United States vessels including the Lexington and George Washington, to the Paul W. Chapman corporation.

According to early information here, the Kirkwood sank soon after the crash, but it is believed the crew had time to take to the boats before the vessel went down. The President Harding, however, some time to make sure that the entire crew had been picked up, and then proceeded towards its destination.

The President Harding carried a large number of passengers from New York, in addition to those picked up at Cherbourg and Southampton.

Held May 21-22.

Proposing an amendment to the city ordinance governing the management of the Berger hospital, that dentists practicing under the state law may have the use of such dental surgery as may arise, was the chief business transacted at the monthly meeting of the Pickaway-co medical society Friday.

Dr. A. L. Stump, county commissioner, announced a chest clinic to be held in this city May 21 and 22 for anti-tuberculosis work.

BENEFIT PARTY PROCEEDS TO AID BERGER HOSPITAL

The sincere effort expended by the Business and Professional Women's club in their party at Circleville Athletic club Friday night, was well repaid by the success financially, and socially of the affair. The proceeds will be used by the organization to add to their fund for furnishing the office at the New Berger Memorial hospital.

The Business and Professional Women's club which has always been willing to help other groups in the city, appreciated the return favors Friday night at the worthy occasion. Private parties and club groups engaged 48 tables.

These were placed around the walls of the gym in two rows, with their cards announcing who had engaged each table. In the center of the large gymnasium floor stood baskets and branches of red bud and dog wood, and potted ferns. This touch of colorful decoration added a real party atmosphere to the function, which was reported to be one of the most successfully managed yet held in the city since the vogue for benefit card parties became popular.

The men too, turned out for the occasion and did not try to conceal the fact they were having a splendid time. Neither were they backward in claiming the prizes.

There was no doubting or redoubling during the evening. This was announced before the game started, by Mrs. Mary Morris who also made the announcements and was in charge of awarding the prizes.

Miss Sally Lynch was chairman of the party. She was assisted by the hospitality committee and others of the business woman's club.

Without the donations, the club took in $94 at the door, and the expenses were nearly $15.

Mrs. Germain Joseph was the lucky winner of the door prize. The first prize for women at bridge was won by Mrs. Laura Pontious; Miss Adeline Weldon, second, and Miss Mary Radcliffe, third. The men's prizes were claimed by Mr. James H. Adams, first; H. O. Grant, second, and John Gallaher, third.

At five hundred, R. N. Beattie won first and John Ward, Jr. second. Two prizes for euchre were won by Ray Reid and Russell Miller.

The Business and Professional Women's club is anxious to thank the public for its support, and interest in the club, and the club's party, given for funds for the hospital.

MADISON-CO FARM HAS GREAT BLAZE

Barn, Livestock, Equipment and Products Ruined Early Friday Morning.

A mammoth barn on the old Titus farm, near South Solon, was completely wiped out by fire which started about 3 a. m. Friday and burned rapidly until the big structure was a mass of burning logs, twisted roofing and ruined farm implements.

In the barn at the time were two horses, seven calves, a large amount of hay, and many farming implements and harness owned by Harry Price, tenant on the farm.

Origin of the fire could not be ascertained. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

The previous night a big barn on the Madison farm near South Charleston, was destroyed, and belief is entertained that both barns might have been started by an unknown fire bug.

ELECTRIC CO. MAKES GIFT

Southern Ohio, Through C. T.
Gilmore, Donates To Berger Hospital.

The Southern Ohio Electric Co., of which Charles T. Gilmore is local superintendent, will give an electric cauterizer to the Berger hospital, it was announced Saturday.

The cauterizer is valued at between $75 and $100 and is given by the electric company at the suggestion of Mr. Gilmore.

A cauterizer is very useful in a hospital and will be greatly appreciated by the hospital commission.

5 ARE KILLED BY TROOPERS

BELGRADE, April 26.—Five persons were killed and twenty wounded, six of them seriously, when an unidentified troop of military fired a volley into a crowd dancing before the town church in the village of Zidilje today.

The meagre reports filtering through did not furnish the details of exact circumstances that brought on the tragedy. Jugo-Slavian government officials immediately ordered an exhaustive report of the outrage.

The Need of Regeneration

John R. Mott says "What the world needs today is not chiefly additional external arrangements such as the League of Nations, Family of Nations, World Court, arbitration treaties or peace congresses, or what is paramount to these important means and agencies."

"Important as these institutions and means are, far more important and necessary is it to get inside of men and change their outlook, their disposition, their motives, their ambitions, their spirit, for out of these are the issues of international life. In a word, the need is not so much reconstruction as regeneration. The process of filling the world with goodwill is a superhuman work."

Giving Up All For The Kingdom.
Matthew 19:16-26 for April 27.

Here is a lesson demonstrating the fact that one may have all human attainments, but if his motive is not right, then he is not in the Kingdom of God. The one approaching Christ saying "What good thing shall I do that I may have eternal life," had youth glowing with health and ambitions, he had wealth which if rightly used and gained is an honor to man releasing him from bondage and making possible many joys of life. He had an education, furnishing the power of intelligence, he had an influential position which widens and multiplies power, but above all he had an unspotted character as measured by the customs and laws of his day and character is of highest value, but there is a fine discrimination between moral character and Christian character which is to be found in the study of this lesson.

V. 17 "And he said unto him, why askest me concerning that which is good? One there is that is good, but if thou wouldst enter into life, keep the commandments. Jesus perceived that this young man wants to merit the kingdom, to do something to inherit eternal life—that is to receive it as right not of grace. To keep the commandments perfectly requires the help of God, Jesus led the young man's thinking by degrees, first quoting the commandments most easily kept omitting the first table of the decalogue and the commandment of covetousness.

V. 20 "The young man saith unto him, all these have I observed, what lack I yet?" This young man felt that he needed something else, though he possessed wealth, education, position, moral character. There is a deep spiritual need that can be satisfied only at the feet of Jesus.

V. 21 "Jesus said unto him, if thou wouldst be perfect, go, sell that which thou hast, and give to the poor and thou shalt have treasure in heaven." To be perfect is to show the proper expression of keeping the commandments with the help of God. There was a selfish core in the life of this young man—it was the common sin of all time, the love of money, in his case the only way to get the core out was to willingly give his wealth to the poor, it is necessary that one be willing to give the dearest he has for the kingdom of God, how often we are called upon to give up our earthly friend, but the victory comes when we surrender and really give up all for the kingdom.

V. 22 "But when the young man heard the saying, he went away sorrowful, for he was one that had great possession. To everyone comes the moment to choose, this young man made the mistake of his life by going away from the One who could give him what he lacked. So far as we know, he never returned.

Vs. 23, 24 "And Jesus said unto his disciples, verily I say unto you, it is hard for a rich man to

YANKEES WIN FIRST VICTORY IN LEAGUE RACE OVER SOX

BY COPELAND C. BURG.
NEW YORK, April 26.—Cross your heart and hope to die—they did it. The Yankees at last won a ball game, defeating the Red Sox 3 to 2, and today those miserable clippers in the percentage column have gone the way of all flesh.

It took 10 innings to do it. Babe Ruth's first homer of the season and doubles by Tony Lazzeri and Ben Chapman, the last two hitting in the 10th, were the winning factors for the long suppressed men of Shawkey. Johnston pitched a sweet game for New York striking out 10, while Monsieur Gaston of Boston was nobody's Alphonse, fanning six and allowing only seven hits.

WRINKLED VET ENTERS RACER IN BIG EVENT

Zeke Meyer Has Been Flirting With Fate of Speed Since Year 1906.

GEORGE SIMPSON TO TAKE PART IN PENN MEET TODAY

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Editor.
PHILADELPHIA, Apr., 26.—George Simpson, the man who annihilates distance and makes a fool of time, will go for his first airing of the eastern season today in a special 100 yard dash at the Pennsylvania relay games, the distance at which he once ran faster than ever human foot has travelled. On the occasion in question, he was clocked in 2-5 seconds, coming out of the Nicholson starting blocks, and this afternoon he will combine this device with a favorable track for another sortie against the old split-second.

The foot, says George in effect, is faster than the watch and maybe he will have to prove it today. He has picked up a live one in Karl Wildermuth, of Georgetown, the current intercollegiate champion at the distance, and there are no roadshows growing under the insteps of Ed Hamm, either. He is the only Hamm who hasn't time to wait for a side order of cabbage.

MUST SHOW FORM

The rest of the field is up to the relay standard, so Simpson may have to do as low as 9-3-5 seconds, his winning time at the 1929 games, in order to get down there promptly enough to nod briskly to the stewards. The track, as said, is ready for a record effort. The weather, too, has moderated some points off yesterday's frigid blast, which was cold enough to blow the curl right out of a pompadour.

It didn't stop Simpson from rampaging down the track on the anchor leg of the 440 yard relay championship to all but close out the account of one Mr. East, of Chicago. It didn't stop Berlinger from establishing a new carnival record of 7460.605 points in the decathlon, interspersed with games records by the same agile young man in the shot put, javelin throw and pole vault. Nor did it stop almost the identical Chicago team in the sprint medley event nor Hatfield of Indiana, in the high hurdles and, by the same token, it will stop Simpson, Hamm and Wildermuth only when the last yard of their hundred is no more.

Simpson took a beating from Jim Daley, Holy Cross, at 60 yards in New York last winter and probably is primed for the effort of his young life. He may have to be. Both Hamm and Wildermuth can and will do better than 10 seconds.

HAND IN BROAD JUMP

Hamm's entry may or may not mean a new record in the broad jump, much depending on how far he has come on his conditioning. He can train on a shave and a haircut and beat 25 feet. His world's record is 25 feet 11 3-4 inches and if he is at all ready today, he will be up.

Two of the best races on the final day's relay program will be those at one and four miles. One of the worst may be the so-called "Feature," which originally was supposed to bring Dr. Paul Martin, Switzerland, Ray Conger and Leo Lermond together at the mile distance. Dr. Martin won't appear and the only time Conger and Lermond will get together is at the start. Lermond proved that yesterday when he was beaten off like a tyro by George Bullwinkle, New York City College, and Gene Venzke, unattached, in a special three quarter mile run. The Boston man was presumed to be ready for a record effort but Bullwinkle left him fifty yards in the rack at the finish.

Goslin in the eighth won for Washington over Philadelphia's world champions, 6 to 4, and the Senators today were leading the American League. That blast was the third in four trips to the pan for the Goose.

Walter Stewart, Brown's southpaw, had far too much for the White Sox and St. Louis won 4 to 2. The Sox were powerless except in the eighth, when Harris, a pinch hitter, pulled a homer, scoring Clancy. Harris, formerly of the Portland Coast League club, was making his big circuit debut.

Jamieson's single, a double by Fonseca and Hodapp's infield roller-triumped in the 10th for Cleveland over Detroit. The score was 5 to 4.

In the National League the Pittsburgh Pirates celebrated their first home game in a win over St. Louis, 6 to 1. Chick Hafey of the Cards and Ira Flaggstead of the Pirates not homers.

GRIMM COMES THROUGH
Charlie Grimm's single brought the Cubs a 6 to 5 victory in 12 innings over Cincinnati after it looked like the Reds were a cinch. They were tied up four and four in the ninth. The Reds scored in the 12th but the fighting Cubs would not quit. Cuyler opened the last canto with a triple scoring on Wilson's single. Then Heathcote singled, Wilson going to second and scoring on Grimm's hit.

The Brooklyn Robins finally won another game as Vance dazzled the Braves. The score was 5 to 1 and Boston's lone tally was unearned, Vance allowing only three hits.

The Giants, still leading the league with four games won and none lost, could not play on account of cold weather and will engage the Phillies today in the first of a long list of double headers.

Zeke Meyer Has Been Flirting With Fate of Speed Since Year 1906.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. — Zeke Meyer, 39-year-old speed wrinkled veteran of speed has entered a car in the International 500-Mile Race for $100,000 at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 30, it was announced today by T. E. (Pop) Myers, general manager of the track.

Meyer, who is not related to Louis Meyer, the 25-year old two time American speedway champion of 1928 and 1929, against whom he will compete in the coming race, was christened Herbert Ernest Meyer, has been wedded since 1912, is the father of a grown son and daughter and makes a family home at German-town.

Although he has been flirting with the fates of speed since 1906, Dame fortune has given him little more than a passing glance of recognition in big league racing. On the dirt tracks of his native state, he has cut his name in dusty

CORN DEPENDS ON DEPTH OF PLOWING

COLUMBUS, O.—The depth of plowing in the corn field, and the yield of corn which will be obtained from that field, are very largely definitely related, it is shown in the records of more than 300 Ohio farmers who in the past 10 years have been enrolled in the Ohio 100-Bushel Corn project, which is sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service of the Ohio State University here.

The deeper the plowing, the higher the yield, according to these records. In examining them to see what effect plowing has on corn yields, the extension specialists divided the farmers into groups on the basis of the yield of corn secured. One group averaged 60 bushels to the acre; the next averaged 80 bushels, the third averaged 100 bushels, and the last averaged 120 bushels.

The growers whose yields averaged 60 bushels plowed their corn to an average depth of 6.9 inches. The farmers who harvested 80 bushels to the acre plowed to an average depth of 7.1 inches; the 100-bushel group plowed to an average depth of 7.3 inches, and the 120-bushel group harvested their heavy yields from land which had been plowed to an average depth of 7.6 inches, or .7 inch deeper than the plowing of the 60-bushel group.

Other factors entered in the yields, of course, but the relation between deep plowing and high yields remains, nevertheless, say the specialists.

"Deep plowing is better than shallow plowing because it loosens up more soil and therefore increases the feeding for the roots," say the farm crops men. "However, if shallow plowing, four to five inches, has been the common practice for several years, it is best not to turn up too much subsoil at one time. This is especially true with clay soil. The best method of increasing the depth of plowing on soils of this type is to plow an inch deeper each year, until a depth of seven or eight inches is reached. The small amount of subsoil turned up each year will in this way have time to mix with the surface soil and the organic matter plowed under, and will not be so likely to 'puddle' or 'run.'" letters, covering himself with local fame as well as dust.

But this year he feels he has a real chance to grab a husky handful of the $100,000 they hang on the finish wire for the successful contestants in the 500-mile run.

Meyer has had some valuable experience on the local bricks. In 1927 he drove relief for Earl DeVore, the speed star who later was drowned when the SS. Vestris sank, riding his car from eighth place to fourth place from where DeVore, after the rest gained while Meyer was driving, speeded the car home in second place.

In 1928 Meyer drove relief for Norman Batten, who also was drowned in the Vestris disaster. He placed Batten's mount from nineteenth to fifth. Last year Meyer started his own car but did not finish.

"I'm not exactly superstitious," says Meyer, "but I don't want '13' as a number for my car, and I wouldn't think of racing unless my Masonic ring was on my left hand."

In all his years of racing Meyer recalls one very amusing incident. A dirt track race was being run from a standing start. With motors roaring, each driver was permitted three mechanics to give him a starting push. When the red flag fell, a car piloted by a green driver, moved backward with a jerk knocking down two of the assisting mechanics. "The green pilot in his nervousness, had put the car in reverse gear instead of low," laughed Zeke.

Meyer who has been watching races for many years, competing against many of the stars past and present, is of the opinion that the late Frank Lockhart was the greatest driver of all time. Lockhart won the 1926 race at Indianapolis.

GEORGE SIMPSON TO TAKE PART IN PENN MEET TODAY

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Editor.

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 26—George Simpson, the man who annihilates distance and makes a fool of time, will go for his first airing of the eastern season today in a special 100 yard dash at the Pennsylvania relay games, the distance at which he once ran faster than ever human foot has travelled. On the occasion in question, he was clocked in 3.2-5 seconds, coming out of the Nicholson starting blocks, and this afternoon he will combine this device with a favorable track for another sortie against the old split-second.

The foot, says George in effect, is faster than the watch and may be he will have to prove it today. He has picked up a live one in Karl Wildermuth of Georgetown, the current intercollegiate champion at the distance, and there are no radishes growing under the insteps of Ed Hamm, either. He is the only Hamm who hasn't time to wait for a side order of cabbage.

MUST SHOW FORM
The rest of the field is up to the relay standard, so Simpson may have to do as low as 9.3-5 seconds, his winning time at the 1929 games, in order to get down there promptly enough to nod briskly to the stewards. The track, as said, is ready for a record effort. The weather, too, has moderated some points off yesterday's frigid blast, which was cold enough to blow the curl right out of a pompadour.

It didn't stop Simpson from rampaging down the track on the anchor leg of the 440 yard relay championship to all but close out the account of one Mr. East, of Chicago. It didn't stop Berlinger from establishing a new carnival record of 7460.608 points in the decathlon, interspersed with games records by the same agile young man in the shot put, javelin throw and pole vault. Nor did it stop almost the identical Chicago team in the sprint medley event nor Hatfield of Indiana, in the high hurdles and, by the same token, it will stop Simpson, Hamm and Wildermuth only when the last yard of their hundred is no more. Simpson took a beating from Jim Daley, Holy Cross, at 60 yards in New York last winter and probably is primed for the effort of his young life. He may have to be. Both Hamm and Wildermuth can and will do better than 10 seconds.

HAMM IN BROAD JUMP
Hamm's entry may or may not mean a new record in the broad jump, much depending on how far he has come on his conditioning. He can train on a shave and a haircut and beat 25 feet. His world's record is 25 feet 11 3-4 inches and if he is at all ready today, he will be up.

Two of the best races on the final day's relay program will be those at one and four miles. One of the worst may be the so-called "Feature," which originally was supposed to bring Dr. Paul Martin, Switzerland; Ray Conger and Leo Lermond together at the mile distance. Dr. Martin won't appear and the only time Conger and Lermond will get together is at the start. Lermond proved that yesterday when he was beaten off like a tyro by George Bullwinkle, New York City College, and Gene Venzke, unattached, in a special three quarter mile run. The Boston man was presumed to be ready for a record effort but Bullwinkle left him fifty yards in the ruck at the finish.

Bullwinkle and Venzke are coming back at Conger today and it is well that they are. Obviously, Lermond will furnish no contention unless he picks up yards and yards of running overnight.

The one mile relay will produce the same quintet, Harvard, Holy Cross, Syracuse, Pennsylvania and

He was a member of the building committee when the present Circleville United Brethren church was built in 1898.

Fraternally, Mr. Neuding is a member of the Masonic Lodge, chapter, council and commandery in Circleville. Eastern Star Knights of Pythias, and Woodmen of America. He was one of the

There has been nothing too big, nor too insignificant in the history of Circleville to be slighted by Mr. Neuding for the past 40 years. His motto of "hard work and plenty of it" has and always will supply him with days full of energy, and plans for looking ahead. He is one of the city fathers and has gained the title on any of a great many merits which would have accredited him to this coveted position among his fellowmen.

PRISON REFORM

A congressman who was chairman of a congressional committee which investigated American prison conditions in 1928 says:

"While we found plenty of overcrowding at Columbus, it was nothing to compare with the overcrowding in federal prisons." And the Columbus prison, now vividly present in every mind because of the tragic fire which cost more than 300 lives, has been represented as the worst institution of its kind.

Fortunately the state of Ohio and various other states are now moved to do something about the proper housing of their prison population. So is the federal government. A bill is expected to pass in Congress which will provide a new, modern federal prison in the northeastern section, probably in Pennsylvania, and one in the southwestern section, probably in Texas. In addition, several federal prisons may be erected in large cities to accommodate the short-term prisoners and relieve the congestion of the big penitentiaries. It is high time for this.

Perhaps those wretched prisoners at Columbus did not die their tortured death in vain. In a sense they may be considered martyrs. Their death helps at least a little toward the reform of our prison system and will make life less intolerable hereafter.

APPLAUSE WINS

Concert-goers in all parts of the country have been interested in Leopold Stokowski's war on applause at symphony concerts. Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra, began a year or so ago to rebuke audiences for spoiling the effect of the great music to which they listened by noisy and unmusical handclapping. He strictly forbade the clapping for a while.

Recently a questionnaire was sent to 1,000 orchestra subscribers to get an expression of their view on this matter. Replies from 700 persons favored clapping; only 200 persons were in favor of the director's ban on applause. Mr. Stokowski yields to the wish of the majority; hereafter clapping will be permitted.

Audiences like to applaud for various reasons. If they have been greatly pleased or moved or acting, it is natural to want to express their pleasure. Clapping is less disturbing than shouting and stamping—older forms of applause. Also, applauding rests and relaxes the audience a little, so that listeners are in better condition to give full attention to the next number on the program. That should please the performers. The orchestra players, if they run true to tradition, have no objection to applause. Singers would probably perish without it.

You'd think, to look at some of our American canals, that there had been an international agreement to limit canal boats.

Arizona Canyons

The Colorado river flows through a canyon for practically its entire length in Arizona. The name Grand Canyon, however, is restricted to a particular part, which is almost entirely in Grand Canyon National park. Above and below the park, many miles of canyon are in the Navajo and Hopi Indian reservations.

ANOTHER PRESIDENTIAL PROBLEM

"SHEIK'S WIFE" BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

WHAT HAS HAPPENED THUS FAR.

YOUNG and unsophisticated Eve Reade meets Kenneth Wilmer, noted artist. They fall in love. Eve's friend, Mary, tries to convince her the match is unsuitable. Ken introduces Eve to his unconventional artist colony set. When Ken leaves a party with Fifi Devoe, Eve is hurt. Nory O'Rell, author friend of Ken's also interested in Eve, drives her to Fifi's. Ken is there and rushes to Eve, telling of his longing for her. After parting Eve the next day, Ken gives a party. Eve is thrilled when Ken and Nory toast her. The first misunderstanding comes when Eve tells of meeting Nory and his tea party. Ken is jealous. They make up and all goes well, until the next get-together, when in a discussion on marriage, Ken calls it "shackles." Eve is disappointed, and that night tells him it is "good-bye." Unable to stand the separation, Eve goes to Ken. He is overjoyed and proposes marriage, explaining his opinion did not apply to them. Eve is blue when Nory leaves for New York without wishing her happiness. She and Ken visit Eve's relatives in Lakeview.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVII.
THAT sweetly solemn day when October was to fling gay banners into the sky and Eve was to walk up the aisle of the country church—to move to the majestic strains of Lohengrin straight into the arms of Ken—that day never came. As Eve had dreamed it, so it remained an exquisite dream. For she was married in Haverford. And in June, without rose-point or ivory satin or music or attendants.

But after the few words that made her Ken's wife he held her close whispering, "Do you mind, sweetheart? Giving up so much—I shouldn't have asked this—"

And she whispered back, quivering with rapture, "It's what I wanted Ken—truly—oh, Ken, I'm to happy!"

And she meant it then, with all her heart. But in a future hour she was to realize how deep had been her disappointment, and to feel a haunting regret that her day of days had turned out to be, as she thought of it then, the strangest a girl ever had.

Of course it all came about because of Ken's moody immaturity and his strange shyness. "Lots of people know my stuff, sweetheart. There'll be reporters out here called cameramen. A movie outfit called to take a picture of the ceremony."

"Ken! What did you tell them?" "Plenty. I never thought much about it before, but I guess the wise ones are those that slip away and get married without saying anything in advance. I don't suppose," he asked tentatively, "you'd think it all right if we just got right here?"

"Oh, Ken!" Rose-point, Lohengrin, Uncle Mat giving the bride away—all the lovely dreams vanishing. He said no more, but as the weeks went along Eve could see he was disturbed. He spent a good deal of time at the Stewart's and the editor of "Sky Lines," the magazine for which he did most of his work, began to bother. For Ken, always late with his pictures, now would go for days without touching brush or crayon.

jected. "This isn't musical comedy you know."

"Don't parade an inferior, complex, big boy. I suppose, strong orchestra will do, though I won't be quite as keen. Do you suppose Eve would wear something clever—make it a costume wedding, maybe? Black and orange say."

"She would not," grunted Ken. "Forget it, Elma. Or save it for your next venture."

"No enterprise at all," grumbled Elma. "And you could grab columns of publicity if you'd listen to reason."

"Don't want publicity, you idiot. And if you keep this up I'll send you over to Greenwich and all you sencken-hounds can go to the devil!"

Elma subsided after this, but Eve looked forward with misgivings. She and Mary had made her dress, a girlish, simple thing of white chiffon and much as she loved it she could not help thinking of the ivory satin which would go back into the cedar chest. Still it was all right; since she was to marry Ken everything was all right. Only she hoped they would not turn the ceremony into theatricals.

And they did not; Ken saw this. On the morning of the wedding day he drove to the Stewart's really. We'll have the last week in June."

"Get your things on, Eve. I phoned the parson over at Nard City."

"Gosh, you're a real comic. Say, there aren't any more of those changed plans about the 'robe' being worn for the ceremony?"

"Oh, I do! But my beautiful wedding—well—"

DR. COPELAND SAYS—

Avoid a Weak Heart

—It Can Be Done, Says Dr. Copeland

This Vital Organ, the Engine of Your Body, Needs Its Rest Periods and This Is Possible Only When You Help by Sane Living

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

GOOD health of the heart depends very much upon the general good health of an individual. If you will take care of the simple things in daily living, the big things will take care of themselves. Eating the right food, getting proper exercise to keep the body in good condition, having adequate sleep and rest: These have a direct bearing upon heart health and general health alike.

DR. COPELAND

The heart, which is the engine of your body, does a wonderful piece of work for you. It pumps away, day and night, to make possible all the things you wish to do.

Like any other machine, it must have its rest periods. It, too, suffers from the wear and tear of life. Of course it never does stop beating but Nature has provided a time for it to slow down and recuperate. This it does during sleep.

The heart is made up of muscles which contract and expand in a rhythmic beat. Under normal conditions, the heart rests one-tenth of a second after each beat. This short rest permits it to store up sufficient energy for its contraction period.

You cannot be well nourished, strong and full of energy unless your heart is able to do its full duty. It cannot do its duty unless the heart muscles are well-nourished and vigorous.

What the heart will or will not depend on the heart muscles. The heart, doing its work as it does by the action of its muscles, cannot work properly unless they are adequately fed, regularly exercised and guarded against poisoning through toxic substances set up in the body or by other poisons.

The food we eat must be prepared by the blood. The blood cannot do its good work unless it has a good heart to send it throughout the body. The heart, too, has to be properly fed and nourished.

Today, when the food is so thin, many a poor heart is undernourished. Underfeeding is bound to make the heart suffer.

For the muscles of the body and muscles of the heart we need protein foods for tissue building—lean meats, milk, cheese, the cereals and eggs. There must be regular intake of these foods or the heart grows weak.

The heart is hooked up with the body so that it shares all the benefits as well as all the disadvantages of the body. When you have poisons in the body, arising from chronic sores, bad teeth and tonsils, chronic indigestion and constipation the chances are that soon your heart will feel the bad effects.

Some mineral poisons have a way of undermining the heart action. Lack of iron in the food is another factor.

When you walk, run or indulge in sports the heart beats faster, with shorter rest periods in consequence. A great and sudden strain is put upon the heart and it has to accommodate itself to the added burden. If the muscles are fortified by nourishing food and right living you can see that it will be a more efficient machine to bear the great strain put upon it.

The emotions have an immediate effect upon the heart. News of an accident to someone near to you, or any other emotional experience which brings a sudden strain on the heart is more easily borne by the heart if it is in good condition. When you take care of yourself in what you eat, how you exercise, how you work and how you rest, you are strengthening up the necessary health and vigor of heart and body necessary for future emergencies.

Girls and boys in school and college should realize this. Too often we hear of the boy or girl who has been over doing in athletics in school or college. Athletics and sports in moderation are exceedingly good, but in excess they are harmful to the heart.

Vacation time will soon be here. Have a good time and enjoy every moment of it, but take your sports in moderation and come home rested and better fit for the daily round of living.

Answers to Health Queries

D. R. Q.—What do you advise for pimples?

A.—First correct the diet, by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat simple food. Avoid constipation.

E. Y. S. Q.—What will make the eyelashes grow?

A.—Apply one per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment at night. This should help you.

F. M. B. Q.—What do advise for removing superfluous hair?

A.—Until the use of the X-ray was discovered the only known and certain way of removing superfluous hair was by the use of the electric needle. When the needle is properly used there is little scarring of the skin, but it must be employed by an expert. On the whole it is safer than the X-ray and gives permanent relief. "The Wagon Master" pays tribute to a class of men who played a prominent part in the winning of the West to civilization, and who have received small notice for their work. PRISON REFORM

A congressman who was chairman of a congressional committee which investigated American prison conditions in 1928 says:

"While we found plenty of overcrowding at Columbus, it was nothing to compare with the overcrowding in federal prisons." And the Columbus prison, now vividly present in every mind because of the tragic fire which cost more than 300 lives, has been represented as the worst institution of its kind!

Fortunately the state of Ohio and various other states are now moved to do something about the proper housing of their prison population. So is the federal government. A bill is expected to pass in Congress which will provide a new, modern federal prison in the northeastern section, probably in Pennsylvania, and one in the southwestern section, probably in Texas. In addition, several federal prisons may be erected in large cities to accommodate the short-term prisoners and relieve the congestion of the big penitentiaries. It is high time for this.

Perhaps those wretched prisoners at Columbus did not die their tortured death in vain. In a sense they may be considered martyrs. Their death helps at least a little toward the reform of our prison system and will make life less intolerable hereafter.

APPLAUSE WINS

Concert-goers in all parts of the country have been interested in Leopold Stowkowski's war on applause at symphony concerts. Stowkowski, conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra, began a year or so ago to rebuke audiences for spoiling the effect of the great music to which they listened by noisy and unumskilled handclapping. He strictly forbade the clapping for a while.

Recently a questionnaire was sent to 1,000 orchestra subscribers to get an expression of their view on this matter. Replies from 700 persons favored clapping; only 200 persons were in favor of the director's ban on applause. Mr. Stowkowski yields to the wish of the majority; hereafter clapping will be permitted.

Audiences like to applaud for various reasons. If they have been greatly pleased or moved or acting, it is natural to want to express their pleasure. Clapping is less disturbing than shouting and stamping—older forms of applause. Also, applauding rests and relaxes the audience a little, so that listeners are in better condition to give full attention to the next number on the program. That should please the performers. The orchestra players, if they run true to tradition, have no objection to applause. Singers would probably perish without it.

You'd think, to look at some of our American canals, that there had been an international agreement to limit canal boats.

Arizona Canyons

The Colorado river flows through a canyon for practically its entire length in Arizona. The name Grand Canyon, however, is restricted to a particular part, which is almost entirely in Grand Canyon National park. Above and below the park, many miles of canyon are in the Navajo and Hopi Indian reservations.

Was New to Columbus

Columbus' record of his visit to Haiti include mention of a "nightingale" which sang by day and by night, and which was probably a mocking bird.

ANOTHER PRESIDENTIAL PROBLEM

"SHEIK'S WIFE"

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

WHAT HAS HAPPENED THUS FAR.

YOUNG and unsophisticated Eve Reade meets Kenneth Wilmer, noted artist. They fall in love. Eve's friend, Mary, tries to convince her the match is unsuitable. Ken introduces Eve to his unconventional artist colony set. When Ken leaves a party with Fifi Devore, Eve is hurt. Nory O'Rell, author friend of Ken's also interested in Eve, drives her to Fifi's. Ken is there and rushes to Eve, telling of his longing for her. After painting Eve the next day, Ken gives a party. Eve is thrilled when Ken and Nory toast her. The first misunderstanding comes when Eve tells of meeting Nory and his tea party. Ken is jealous. They make up and all goes well, until the next get-together, when in a discussion on marriage, Ken calls it "shackles." Eve is disappointed, and that night tells him it is "good-bye." Unable to stand the separation, Eve goes to Ken. He is overjoyed and proposes marriage, explaining his opinion did not apply to them. Eve is blue when Nory leaves for New York without wishing her happiness. She and Ken visit Eve's relatives in Lakeview.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVII.

THAT sweetly solemn day when October was to fling gay banners into the sky and Eve was to walk up the aisle of the country church—to move to the majestic strains of Lohengrin straight into the arms of Ken—that day never came. As Eve had dreamed it, so it remained an exquisite dream.

For she was married in Haverford. And in June. Without rose-point or ivory satin or music or attendants.

But after the few words that made her Ken's wife he held her close, whispering, "Do you mind, sweetheart? Giving up so much—I shouldn't have asked this—"

And she whispered back, quivering with rapture, "It's what I wanted Ken—truly—oh, Ken, I'm so happy!"

And she meant it then, with all her heart. But in a future hour she was to realize how deep had been her disappointment and to feel a haunting regret that her day of days had turned out to be, as she thought of it then, the strangest a girl ever had.

Of course it all came about because of Ken's moody impatience and his strange shyness. "Lots of people know my stuff, sweetheart. There'll be reporters up there and cameramen. A movie outfit called up the other day and wanted to take a picture of the ceremony."

"Ken! What did you tell them?"

"Plenty. I never thought much about it before, but I guess the wise ones are those that slip away and get married without saying anything in advance. I don't suppose," he asked tentatively, "you'd think it all right if we put it over right here? We could have the club house and a dinner for the gang afterward."

"Oh, Ken!" Rose-point, Lohengrin, Uncle Mat giving the bride away—all the lovely dreams vanishing.

He said no more, but as the weeks went along Eve could see he was disturbed. He spent a great deal of time at the Stewarts' and the editor of "Sky Lines," the magazine for which he did most of his work, began to bother. For Ken, always late with his pictures, now would go for days without touching brush or crayon.

Mary finally told Eve that she ought to do something about it. "After all you've got to think of his welfare, dear. He's an overgrown child, really, but you're taking him as he is. I'm afraid life won't be too easy for you. Still that won't matter if you love him enough."

"Oh, I do! But my beautiful wedding—well—"

"A wedding is a wedding, Eve. And you'll be giving up most of the things Lakeview stands for when you marry Ken and settle down in The Lane."

Mary had not thought of this before; the "whether thou goest I will go and thy people shall be my people" idea came to her with a shock. A different life from the one she always had looked forward to opened before her if she married Ken; she would find herself in perplexing and perhaps dangerous ways unless she were very careful, very wise.

She meant to make a success of her marriage. She meant to help Ken, see that he achieved the fine heights of his aspirations. Of course it would mean sacrifice. And perhaps the matter of the wedding was to be the first. A small thing, after all.

She told Ken when he came that evening. "We'll be married here, dearest. I've thought this over. It doesn't make any difference

jected. "This isn't musical comedy, you know."

"Don't parade an inferior, complex, big boy. I suppose string orchestra will do, though I won't be quite as keen. Do you suppose Eve would wear something clever—make it a costume wedding, maybe? Black and orange say."

"She would not," granted Ken. "Forget it, Elma. Or save it for your next venture."

"No enterprise at all," grumbled Elma. "And you could grab columns of publicity if you'd listen to reason."

"Don't want publicity, you idiot. And if you keep this up we'll sneak over to Greenwich and all you sensation-hounds can go to the devil!"

Elma subsided after this but Eve looked forward with misgivings. She and Mary had made her dress, a girlish, simple thing of white chiffon and much as she loved it she could not help thinking of the ivory satin which would go back into the cedar chest. Still it was all right; since she was to marry Ken everything was all right. Only she hoped they would not turn the ceremony into theatricals.

And they did not; Ken saw to this. On the morning of the wedding day he drove to the Stewarts really. We'll have it the last week in June."

"Get your things on, Eve. I phoned the parson over at Novel City."

His relief was almost comic. "Gosh you're a brick, red-head. Say, there aren't many like you!"

But as soon as the news of their changed plans was noised about the tribe began to prepare for whoopee. Elma led the onslaught upon the Club ballroom where furniture was removed and arrangements made for a great ball of white roses under which she said the bride pair must stand for the ceremony. It would be in the evening she decided, taking over the task of making all arrangements, and they would have a jazz band to toot the wedding march on saxophones.

"Not much, you want," Ken looking very solemn and very dressed up in a dark suit and stiff collar, the first Eve had seen him wear.

He cut the wrappings of a florist's box, took out a corsage of sweetest roses and white violets and said, calmly, "Get your things on, Eve. I phoned the parson over at Novel City. We're to be there in half an hour."

"But—why, Ken—you mean—"

"Course I do. Think I want our wedding turned into a holy show? Let them have their she-mans and we'll turn up in time for supper. You're too sweet for them, Eve—little, sweet darling."

DR. COPELAND SAYS

Avoid a Weak Heart

—It Can Be Done, Says Dr. Copeland

This Vital Organ, the Engine of Your Body, Needs Its Rest Periods and This Is Possible Only When You Help by Sane Living

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

GOOD health of the heart depends very much upon the general good health of an individual. If you will take care of the simple things in daily living, the big things will take care of themselves. Eating the right food, getting proper exercise to keep the body in good condition, having adequate sleep and rest: These have a direct bearing upon heart health and general health alike.

You cannot be well nourished, strong and full of energy unless your heart is able to do its full duty. It cannot do its duty unless the heart muscles are well-nourished and vigorous.

What the heart will or will not depend on the heart muscles. The heart, doing its work as it does by the action of its muscles, cannot work properly unless they are adequately fed, regularly exercised and guarded against poisoning through toxic substances set up in the body or by other poisons.

The food we eat must be prepared by the blood. The blood cannot do its good work unless it has a good heart to send it throughout the body. The heart, too, has to be properly fed and nourished.

Today, when the food is to be thin, many a poor heart is undermined. Underfeeding is bound to make the heart suffer.

For the muscles of the body and muscles of the heart need protein foods for tissue building—lean meats, milk, cheese, the cereals and eggs. There must be regular intake of these foods or the heart grows weak. The heart is hooked up with the body so that it shares all the benefits as well as all the disadvantages of the body. When you have poisons in the body, arising from chronic sore, bad teeth and tonsils, chronic indigestion and constipation, the chances are that soon your heart will feel the bad effects.

Some mineral poisons have a way of undermining the heart action. Lack of iron in the food is another factor.

When you walk, run or indulge in sports the heart beats faster, with shorter rest periods in consequence. A great and sudden strain is put upon the heart and it has to accommodate itself to the added burden. If the muscles are fortified by nour-

Theatres

AT THE METROPOLITAN

It is believed by most directors that they have the makings of a picture when they have obtained the cooperation of three first-rate players, but Cecil B. De Mille, in filming "The King of Kings," was obliged to look for at least eighteen players of stellar quality, so varied in character and treatment are the scenes and so many figures in turn become important in the story. Here are the eighteen leading roles.

Jesus, H. B. Warner; Madonna, Dorothy Cumming; Magdalene, Jacqueline Logan; Caiaphas, Rudolph Schildkraut; Judas, Joseph Schildkraut; Peter, Ernest Torrence; Pontius Pilate, Victor Varconi; Barabbas, George Siegmann; Simon, William Boyd; Little Mark, Mickey Moore; Pharisee, Sam De Grasse; Malchus, Theodore Kosloff; John, Joseph Striker; Matthew, Robert Edeson; Lazarus, Kenneth Thomson; Martha, Julia Fay; Procula, Majel Coleman; Mary of Bethany, Josephine Norman.

It may be urged that two or three of the above are only "bit" players, but that is not the case. Each of them has a role of vital importance. Thus Kenneth Thomson in the raising of Lazarus from the dead, Theodore Kosloff in the arrest of Jesus, Victor Varconi as Pilate, George Siegmann as Barabbas, William Boyd as the bearer of the Cross, become absolutely essential to the climaxes.

"The King of Kings" will be shown at the Metropolitan Theatre.

AT THE CLIFTONA

As the initial vehicle for her talking picture career, Norma Talmadge, star of "Camille," "The Woman," "Disputed," "Smilin' Through" and other big successes of the silent screen, has chosen a story of the Great White Way, its haunts, its escapades and its gay, colorful sons and daughter who make up the famous show world of Broadway. The picture is "New York Nights" and will open on Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre.

This racy, dynamic tale of courageous little chorus girls, struggling song writers, scheming racketeers, and the rank and file of human oddities who evolve this glamorous atmosphere, is taken from the Broadway stage success entitled "Tin Pan Alley," by Hugh Stanislaus Stange. Directed by Lewis Milestone, maker of "Two Arabian Nights," and "The Racket," this United Artists picture is played by a cast of prominent stage and screen notables including beside Miss Talmadge, Gilbert Roland, John Wray, Lilyan Tashman, Mary Doran and Roscoe Karns.

AT THE GRAND

Ken Maynard re-creates a little known phase of the history of the old West in "The Wagon Master," a Universal picture which is at the Grand Theatre. Old cowboy songs and dialogue are a feature of the production. In this film Maynard lives up to ishing food and right living you can see that it will be a more efficient machine to bear the great strain put upon it.

The emotions have an immediate effect upon the heart. Nervousness, an accident to someone near to you or any other emotional experience which brings a sudden strain on the heart is more easily born by the heart if it is in good condition. When you take care of yourself in what you eat, how you exercise, how you work and how you rest, you are storing up the necessary health and vigor of heart and body necessary for future emergencies.

Girls and boys in school and college should realize this. Too often we hear of the boy or girl who has been over doing in athletics in school or college. Athletics and sports in moderation are exceedingly good, but in excess they are harmful to the heart.

Vacation time will soon be here. Have a good time and enjoy every moment of it, but take your sports in moderation and come home rested and better fit for the daily round of living.

Answers to Health Queries

D. R. Q.—What do you advise for pimples?

A.—First correct the diet, by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat simple food. Avoid constipation.

E. Y. S. Q.—What will make the eyelashes grow?

A.—Apply one per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment at night. This should help you.

F. M. B. Q.—What do you advise for removing superfluous hair?

A.—Until the use of the X-ray was discovered the only known and certain way of removing superfluous hair was by the use of the electric needle. When the needle is properly used there is little scarring of the skin, but it must be employed by an expert. On the whole it is safer than the X-ray and gives permanent relief. For further particulars send self-addressed stamped envelope, and restate your question.

CHEERLEADERS WANTED

Cheerleading is a very important activity of a high school. A cheerleader has a very difficult duty for he must be interested and make his followers interested.

The cheerleaders of Circleville high school have led the cheers for the past two years although they have not received any letters.

Next year the sophomores of '33 will have a good chance to lead cheers of Circleville high due to the resignation of the present ones. It is necessary that C. H. S. have good cheerleaders to back up the teams. Freshmen of '33 show your spirit.

FRESHMEN BOYS, ATTENTION

By Stanley Frank.

We had a fine team last year in the class basketball tournament. Why not a better one next year when you will be sophomores? Get into action, more of you go out for athletics next year. Go out for the high school basketball squad; if you don't make it, try for your class team. The more out for the team, the better the material. Put our class on top next year.

SENIOR DAY IS SUCCESS

Hurray for the seniors. Spring is here, with it comes Senior Day—the day when seniors wear anything to make themselves look dumb. And dumb they did look when they faced the camera of C. F. Zaenglein who took their picture on Thursday—Senior Day.

Hugh Cartwright, that real comedian, dressed in rags. Howard Greene, Reynold Greene, and "Web" Adams were running around with baseball uniforms on. Yes! Little boys and girls, too. For instance, we have Edwin Haacker, "Bill" Goeller, Mary Mae Haswell and Jansy Mader. Not forgetting our soldier—Stanley Greene, we have our most worthy "Goody" McCallister as a sleepwalker. We also have Elizabeth Roundhouse "Toots" Hanley, Jona Miller, Doris Shankner, Ruth Long, and others going to and fro wearing a hair ribbon or licking suckers. That isn't all. Here are two old maids—Mary Margaret Moore and Peggy Courtwright. Farmers, "Jaggy" Davis, Harold Davis, and Leon Gordon, compare well with "Bob" Rector who impersonates a big business man. To finish this list we have a motorcycleist, Emil Ross.

WHO IS IT?

By Ellen Bennett.

A junior girl who often visited the Clifton Theatre, but now that the Metropolitan has opened, we see her quite often there. Can it be that she has a crush on S. M.? Her old boy friend was R. S.; but we think that is all in the past now. Basketball has never yet interested her but with her jet black hair she would be "most beautiful" attractive in a junior basketball suit.

ALEXANDER ADDRESSES CHAPEL

Students of Circleville high school listened to one of the cleverest and most interesting talks ever delivered in the auditorium Friday when Rev. William H. Alexander of South Bloomfield talked to the students on his "Many Travels".

The students accepted the talk so graciously that Principal Gephart urged him to return in the near future. The invitation was accepted.

SENIOR PLAY IS WELL UNDER WAY

I'm a "service guy," so much so, that I feel I know what "busybody" means—Good Friday services last Friday—an order to "do" Busybody today—and Easter services last Sunday. At the risk of getting a church complex: "I attended our institution of theological uplift numerous times. N. B. Red and Black style sheet says that means more than three" this last week.

Feel forgiven for the Sunday I sneaked the paters vehicle out and saw "her" home BEFORE church. But what I started to say was—everything has its ritualistic values, even church. For lo and behold: there I learned hiding your light under a bushel was small potatoes in the ethical world.

Which brings me to what I started to say: N. B. Every Pupil Test says that means "Name-ly."

Discovered in the senior class' two fair damsels of extreme unprofessional dramatic achievements, not even Thespians yet, who have not only won the leading juvenile feminine roles of the class play, but whose love making—say Archy and Edward—N. B. Busybody cast outranks any amateur in skill and technique of applied Venusology. And to think these maidens of merit have been adding talents under a bushel—N. B. this "quotation" may be a trifle mixed, you see, this being a freshman edition, I find my "reference works" have disappeared.

R. "our," Greene, only janitor in captivity who never shovels coal or wields a broom, he having a lot of honorary position as such a Busybody, says, "Take it from me, you ain't gouter be too busy to see Busybody; it's a good show."

Dad grammar, but it's in us part. Aside—Dear Public, didn't I slip that line over on the copyreader—sort of repressed desire cropping up.

'The Arrival of Kitty' Chosen; Has Nine Characters; Cast Experienced.

The arrival of Kitty, a three act farce written and produced by Norman Lee Swartout, who is now manager of the play department of Longman's, Green and Co., has been chosen as the play to be presented by the National Thespians in the high school auditorium for the benefit of the Berger hospital during the week after commencement.

J. W. Fetherlin will direct the play.

This show has run over 7,000 performances in the West Theatre of New York City. Being a professionally tested play adapted to the high school stage by experts, it has made more than 2,000 appearances in secondary school auditoriums since 1926.

The cast includes nine characters who have volunteered their services as representatives of plays which have been produced in the high school by this director in the last three years. All persons who will take part in the play will donate their services.

Each of the three acts take place in Halcyon House, a summer resort in the Catskill Mountains. The characters are as follows: William Winkler, a gentleman of the old school; Benjamin Moore, a middle-aged bachelor; Bobbie Baxter, a collegiate who sometimes impersonates women; Ting, a collegiate bell-hop, and Sam, a large negro porter. Aunt Jane, William's old maid sister who leans kindly towards matrimony; Jane, Aunt Jane's niece, who is in love with Bobbie, but who has been requested to marry Mr. Moore whom she has never seen; Kitty, the actress who is beloved by William; and Suzette, the French maid.

The following parts will be filled by alumnae: Thespians: William Winkler, Paul Kirwin, whose comedy such as in The Whole Town's Talking, Lucky Break, Aunt Lucia, and See You Later is always in demand; Bobbie Baxter, Charles Goeller, who has starred either the role of a heavy lover or female impersonator in the same plays with Kirwin, Benjamin Moore, Robert Pickens, who is a villager with good intentions and who is mistaken for a paid matrimonial prospect; Pickens is a star of more than local fame. Aunt Jane, Esther Drum, who holds purse strings and who is strongly "agin" liquor and actresses. Miss Drum has been seen in all of the latest community successes. Kitty, Hortense Reid, the actress, has portrayed this character successfully several times.

The following parts will be filled by members of this year's graduation class: Ting, Charles Kirkpatrick, a bell-hop who receives sudden promotion as temporary manager of the hotel who aids and abets the Cupid schemes of Baxter, and Suzette, Mary Margaret Moore, the maid. Kirkpatrick has starred in recent high school operettas and in the Jokers' Jubilee Moore, an honor student, and Kirkpatrick have principal parts in The Busybody, senior class play.

John Himrod, stage manager of The Garden of the Shah and Jokers' Jubilee, has volunteered his services in like capacity for The Arrival of Kitty. Fred Colville, stage carpenter and general assistant to Himrod has also "joined up." So the back stage work will no doubt be efficiently done.

It is understood that the cast has been invited to stage the farce in a neighboring city. This speaks well for the popularity of local Thespians' work.

CHEERLEADERS WANTED
By Paul Wallace

Cheerleading is a very important activity of a high school. A cheerleader has a very difficult duty for he must be interested and make his followers interested.

The cheerleaders of Circleville high school have led the cheers for the past two years although they have not received any letters.

Next year the sophomores of '33 will have a good chance to lead cheers of Circleville high due to the resignation of the present ones.

It is necessary that C. H. S. have good cheerleaders to back up the teams. Freshmen of '33 show your spirit.

FRESHMEN BOYS, ATTENTION
By Stanley Frenk.

We had a fine team last year in the class basketball tournament. Why not a better one next year when you will be sophomores? Get into action, more of you go out for athletics next year. Go out for the high school basketball squad; if you don't make it, try for your class team. The more out for the team, the better the material. Put our class on top next year.

SENIOR DAY IS SUCCESS

Hurray for the seniors. Spring is here, with it comes Senior Day—the day when seniors wear anything to make themselves look dumb. And dumb they did look on Thursday of this week when they faced the camera of C. F. Zaenglein who took their picture on Thursday—Senior Day.

Hugh Cartright, that real comedian, dressed in rags, Howard Greeno, Reynold Greene, and "Web" Adkins were running around with baseball uniforms on. Yes! Little boys and girls, too. For instance, we have Edwin Haacker, "Bill" Goeller, Mary Mae Haswell and Jinsy Mader. Not forgetting our soldier, Stanley Greene, we have our most worthy "Goofy" McCallister as a sleepwalker. We also have Elizabeth Roundhouse, "Toots" Hanley, Iona Miller, Doris Shankwiler, Ruth Long, and others going to and fro wearing a hair ribbon or licking suckers. That isn't all. Here are two old maids—Mary Margaret Moore and Peggy Court-right. Farmers, "Jaggy" Davis, Harold Davis, and Leon Gordon, compare well with "Bob" Rector who impersonates a big business man. To finish this list we have a motorcyclist, Emil Ross.

ALEXANDER ADDRESSES CHAPEL

Students of Circleville high school listened to one of the cleverest and most interesting talks ever delivered in the auditorium Friday when Rev. William H. Alexander of South Bloomfield talked to the students on his "Many Travels."

The students accepted the talk so graciously that Principal Gehart urged him to return in the near future. The invitation was accepted.

SENIOR PLAY IS WELL UNDER WAY

I'm a "service guy," so much so, that I feel I know what "busybody" means—Good Friday services last Friday—an order to "do" Busybody today—and Easter services last Sunday. At the risk of getting a church complex "I attended our institution of theological uplift numerous times. N. B. Red and Black style sheet says that means more than three" this last week. I feel forgiven for the Sunday I sneaked the paters vehicle out and saw "her" home BEFORE church. But what I started to say was—everything has its utilitarian values, even church. For lo and behold! there I learned hiding your light under a bushel was small potatoes in the ethical world. Which brings me to what I started to say i. e.—N. B. Every Pupil Test says that means "Name-ly."

Discovered in the senior class' Two fair damsels of extreme unprofessional dramatic achievements, not even Thespians yet, who have not only won the leading juvenile feminine roles of the class play, but whose love making—say Archy and Edward—N. B. see Busybody cast outranks any amateur in skill and technique of applied Venusology. And to think these maidens of merit have been aiding talents under a bushel—N. B. this "quotation" may be a trifle mixed; you see, this being a freshman edition, I find my "reference works" have disappeared.

R. "our," Greene, only janitor in captivity who never shovels coal or wields a broom, he having a lot of honorary position as such a Busybody, says, "Take it from me, you ain't ginter be too busy to see Busybody; it's a good show!"

Bad grammar, but it's in his part. Aside—Dear Public, didn't I slip that line over on the copyreader—sort of repressed desire cropping up.

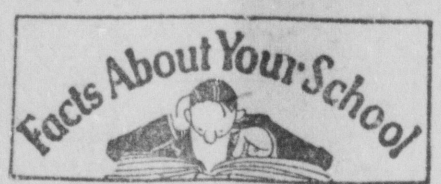

J. W. Fetherlin who directed this play said when interviewed by your correspondent, "What in the Dickens"—Charles J. H. undoubtedly—"do you want now?" I mean he said, "Oh, The Busybody? You may tell our public that our seniors, etc., etc.—N. B. the freshman cut this out simply because of class class envy. I wrote it in the first place because J. W. might see this copy—who can tell—I might be Editor then next year, who can tell, we may beat them all to—pardon me—Our recent cheer practice is ringing in my ears.

Howard Greeno—who broadcasts at W. A. I. U. said he wanted to "love something different," but drawing the same receiver of amorous advances he had in The Garden of Shah, special arrangements have been made—so your humble correspondent was told—and he said H. G. not y. h. c., now woos her from various angles—fire escapes, Cafe Montmartre and is an oily rich in The Busybody. For that I bought my ticket—might not get a pass anyway.
